Georgetown to Play Fordham.

Georgetown will open its series with

Fordham next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, on the varsity grounds. It will be the first contest between the sister colleges ever played in Washington. Here-before the annual game has been decided in New York. Although both universities are conducted by the same organization a great deal of rivalry exists between the two, and it is a "toss up" as to which will come out ahead. The present condition of Georgetown is none too strong. The loss of Haugetty is keenly felt by the locals, and although the absence of Larkin is only temporary, it nevertheless leaves the home team in a critical way to clash with the strong Gothamites.

McLane, Fordham's star twirler, who proved a snag for Georgetown last season,

will probably be in the box Wednesday.

His exhibitions thus far have been effective and a number of strong teams

have met defeat at his hands, on the batting list

also his name appears among the foremost.

Robinson, who covers the initial bag, is conspicuous for his heavy stick work—in the past three seasons he is credited with having decided a number of games by long drives. Oliver, who stands without a drive in the colleges and the work of a

Hartman brothers at second and short can hardly be beat. As a nine they play well together, and are reliable in straits. Ayer and Drennan will oppose McLane, but nevertheless Coach Smith of the visitors expects to take the opening game. The second and third contests will be played on the 24th and 30th of the month in New York. This will be the last game for Georgetown on the home grounds before the northern trip.

Athletics in the Navy.

A naval board consisting of Commander

G. E. Vreeland, Surgeon C. F. Stokes, Surgeon E. S. Bogert, Jr., Lieut. Comdr. W. I.

Chambers and Lieut. Ridley McLean has been appointed to prepare a plan for the athletic training of a plan for the navy, including exercises ashore and afloat.

The method proposed contemplates keeping a comparative record of individual players, and development by means of anthropometric tables.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE.

MOUNT PLEASANT GROUNDS.

The management of the Sunday School League, not satisfied when the transfer was made from the old Mt. Pleasant grounds on Columbia road to the present location, with providing its patrons with a vastly superior stand and grounds, have, with remarkable energy and enterprise, progressed, step by step, adopting every desirable and practical suggestion in the way of betterment, until at the present time there is not a better equipped ball park in the country than the one in Mount Pleasant, excepting those of the big colleges and along the professional circuits, and the organization stands as a thing unique in the history of the national game.

There was no thought, when the old Church League was organized three years ago, that a Sunday School League of such huge proportions would be the outgrowth, but, in the face of great obstacles, meeting every difficulty as it arose, and anticipating many, the management has seen to it that the equipment should keep pace with the league's tremendous growth in popularity.

The most important of the many improvements made this season was the increasing of the seating capacity. Two additions to the grand stand have augmented the accommodations over 60 per cent, and about 1,200 fans can now view the games at Mt. Pleasant from the stands alone. Another feature, which appeals to the players, is a dressing room, which has been constructed at the right of the entrance. This was much needed and is greatly appreciated by the ball tossers, not only for its convenience, but also as a time-saver.

The scorers have not been forgotten. A comfortable nest has been built for their use in the grand stand, where they have a safe retreat from the inevitable small boy with his favorite player of whose record he is the custodian-in-chief, and who was ever present with the refrain "Did he get a hit?" "That was an error, wasn't it?" "Mister, what's the score?" and when a player nearly tore the cover off the ball, but was down and out, would pipe "Ain't that a sacrifice?"

Among the other additions may be mentioned the net lettering over the park entrance, bearing the league's name; the erection of a blackboard, where the result of the National's clash with opponents is posted; the appointment of a private guard, and the flying of the colors of the teams on the day they play, under the stars and stripes.

The official league schedule has just been published, from which the following excerpts are taken:

"After the games herein scheduled have been played, the championship of the Sunday School Athletic Association will be determined by a series of games between teams from both sections, thus prolonging the season beyond the date given in the schedule."

"The Evening Star silver cup and Tappan pennant will be awarded to the team winning the championship. The cup becomes the property of the team and the pennant is retained for one year, a streamer with the name of team being attached.

"In addition to this, it is hoped prizes may be secured for the leading teams of both sections, as well as a number of individual prizes.

"Merchants and public spirited citizens are invited to donate prizes through members of the board of directors.

"Attention is invited to the object of the association as stated in the constitution:

"The object of this organization shall be to promote healthful athletic exercise for its members, and to be an auxiliary to the Christian work for the young men in Sunday schools of the District of Columbia as shall be accepted as allied members of this association."

"The board of directors solicit the cooperation of the public in its efforts. Suggestions or criticisms, when submitted in writing to the president of the association, Mr. George A. Prevost, 610 F street, will be gratefully received.

"Although the expenses this season will be much larger than last year, it was decided not to raise the price of sustaining membership. On the contrary, a special sustaining membership ticket for children under sixteen (16) has been provided at fifty cents ($50) and adult sustaining membership will be one dollar ($1.00) for the season. It is earnestly hoped that the persons interested in the association will take the season beyond the date given in the schedule.

"The Evening Star silver cup and Tappan pennant will be awarded to the team

HIBERNIAN FIELD DAY

What will perhaps be the largest gathering of Irish-Americans ever held in this part of the country will take place Wednesday, June 28, at Chesapeake Beach, when the united divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, comprising seven divisions of the men and six of the ladies, will hold their excursion and field day. Some of the greatest athletes of the country will be present to compete for valuable prizes. Invitations have been extended to the New York Gaelic Athletic Club and prominent athletes of Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis and Chicago. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Hugh F. Harvey, chairman; Miss Sadie Fitzpatrick, secretary; M. J. Sheehan, treasurer; P. T. Moran, J. Frank O'Meara, John J. Dolan, J. A. Myers, James P. Greeley, P. J. Halligan, George A. Malone, J. Hughes, F. J. Sheehy, James McCracken, John P. Dunn, Thomas Leo Fortune, W. F. Allen, D. Stanton, P. Griffin, Miss C. Batters, Miss Margaret L. Brohanan, Miss J. T. Cavanagh, Miss C. Downing, Mrs. Kate Robey, Mrs. J. C. Hughes, Mrs. J. H. Bradley, Miss Kate Schuler, Mrs. A. S. Suter, Miss Mary E. Loefer, Mrs. D. M. Stanton and Mrs. William Buckley.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

What Local Boat Club Men Are Doing.

Words and messages pregnant with hope have been coming from New York to the Potomac river oarsmen. The annual spring meeting of the Middle States Regatta Association is being held there, the new officers being elected, and the bids received from the cities that desired the Labor day regatta. Mr. Bob Milligan of the Schuylkill Navy was chosen president and Mr. David Brown was re-elected to the secretaryship.

Mr. Claude B. Zappone, the delegate of the Potomac Club to the convention, was received more than cordially, and given a high place on the regatta committee. He and President Milligan are very intimate friends, and for years they have aided each other in the boating campaigns. This year both President Milligan and Mr. Zappone are working zealously that the regatta be held in Washington, since President Milligan was present and appreciated the middle states regatta held here on the Potomac two years ago.

At that regatta there were more crews assembled and entered than have ever been gathered together at any aquatic contest or carnival. President Milligan was present at that regatta, and the hospitality with which he was welcomed was a tender spot for Washington in his heart.

He was the one who, on being taken over the course in the United States Regatta boat Gwyn, which acted as referee boat, asserted that the course on the Potomac was equal to the best in the country, and that if the Three Sister regatta was held away from it would surpass the oarsmen's greatest dream for a course.

The New York papers came out the next day after the meeting and asserted that, regarding the whereabouts of the next regatta, Washington was the only name to be heard. The election of President Milligan greatly aided the Potomac Club's chances, and at the early meeting it seemed like the Potomac boys would win the coveted prize of carrying off the regatta to the Potomac.

Of course, there is every chance of Washington being refused in the special meeting in June, when the closeness of dates between it and the national regatta in Baltimore are considered. Should, this being the case, the regatta go further northward, then the Potomacs will apply for the sanction of the N. A. A. to hold the annual Potomac river regatta.

Word comes from Baltimore that the progress of the national regatta is encouraging, and that the crews of the organizations are diligently at work on the water, each striving to outdo the other in the getting up and winning prizes at the big regatta.

Coch Murray Russell of the Arundel has his crews out every day, and is already beginning to show his power in selecting and developing good oarsmen. He has a large number of candidates to select his crews from, and the task of weeding out will not be an easy one.

The Potomacs are also rowing steadily now, and Capt. Mueller has made his formal debut in the crew. Two boatloads of them are already on the water, and from the many new members just elected another crew is expected. At the meeting of the club Wednesday night many members and importance was transacted; primarily, the admission of fifteen new members. They are Richard W. Bone, A. D. Du Ganne, Frank Barlow, Alex. S. Suter, William Weddell, Winfield A. Wilson, Lloyd A. Douglass, G. Arthur Bell, Thomas J. Gorman, Stenemetz, Rawlins Hume, Jessie S. Suter, Roscoe C. Searle, William W. Stewart, R. C. Hunt, Henry E. Duckstein.

The coming regatta was also discussed and the plans for the rest of the season outlined. There is quite a little talk going the rounds about holding a joint lantern parade of all the canoes on the river. The Potomac Club inaugurated this scheme two years ago, and several very brilliant displays have been witnessed.

This year, owing to the great number of canoes on the river and to the inability of those who attempted to form a big joint canoe club to do so, both clubs have virtually agreed to let the festival rest wholly in the hands of the Inter-Club Canoe Club. This will bring together the two clubs and to unite them with friendly social bonds.

Many of the members were also eager to obtain a canoe again, as their club "hookers," as all the members have taken such great pleasure from them. These little affairs are the life of the club, and have been held together with as good a friendship as the most vaunted fraternity boasts.

A new fad sprung up among the members this year is motor boating. Several have purchased craft of different designs and power, and races in this branch of boating will be looked for before the season is over.

The Annapolans have been progressing but slowly of late, and their shell rowing has taken a little slump, expected to last a week or two. But not so with the pleasure craft. Every afternoon and evening Superintendent Biggs is busy taking out and bringing in the cozy canoes and the dainty outriggers. The secluded spots along the upper Potomac are already the mecca for lunching, camping and picnic parties.

Captain Robinson has not yet made his call for candidates, since he realizes that many of his men will be unable to attend until the first of June, or thereabouts. The club is still considering the idea of purchasing the adjoining property in order to be able to accept more members and cut down the long line on the waiting list for membership.

The daily work of the Georgetown crews has now become the object of much interest, as the time draws nearer for the big inter-collegiate regatta next month. Men are enthused over the showing of the Blue and Gray squad made at Annapolis, especially when they have seen the Pennsylvania and Yale crews go down in worse defeats. The men are now rowing regularly, practically the same as those who manned the boats at Annapolis, Barber, the stroke of the "varsity," being the only one who has been unable to continue his work with the crews because his business detains him until 4:30 p.m., by which time the crews are through their day's work.

Coach Dempsey misses the sturdy stroke, filling in on different days with "Capt. Coburn," or L. Brennan. The dampness of the club's quarters at the old deserted ice house above the Aqueduct surely conduces nothing to the physical benefit of the men, and they will be wondering pretty soon why they refused any longer to receive the ever-ready hospitality of the Potomac Club.

All were alerted at the satisfactory showing made by the "Preps" at Annapolis last Saturday, when the high school boys of the Potomac Club placed themselves in the esteem and favor of the upper classmen. Coach Dempsey praised the work of the juniors, and the excitement of the seniors, since it is seen that hereafter most of the "varsity" material will be brought out in this department. The only one who has been dropped from the team is the late freshman, Burns, Capt. Jeffs and the faculty adviser, Mr. Boyle, S. J.; all of whom worked so assiduously in the face of the great adversity which confronted them.

Americans will be glad to hear that at last the Henley Rowing Club has accepted the entry of the Vesper Club. The crew that is rowing now under Coach Jim Dempsey's tutelage is: Exley, stroke; Armstrong, 7; Scott, 6; Williams, 5; Flanagan, 4; Schell, 3; Gleason, 2; Lockwood, bow; Bob Ayers, coxswain. Many will be surprised to hear of the absence of Abell from the coxswain's seat of the Maroon and Gray, but he has just resigned from the club, owing to a disagreement. Abell wished to coxswain the crew, and to coach and place the team in the hands of Coach Jim Dempsey as coach. To be settled the matter was brought to a vote, Dempsey winning 15 to 10. Abell resigned, and the Maroon and Gray in past years, has jumped into Abell's place.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE BATTERS

If championships in base ball were won on batting averages the Fourth Presbyterian would have a runaway race of it in section A of the Sunday School League. This team, which is composed of the same players as last year, with one or two exceptions, finished that season in second place, but this year they have set a hot pace and if they keep up the clip they should land the team in the chase for the pennant. Gunton, which won the inauguration season pennant, and was first in team sticking last year, stands fifth in the list. St. Stephen's leads in team stealing with twenty-four pilfers and is also second in batting. Gunton and Calvary are tied in cushion larcenies.

The following table covers games up to and including that of Wednesday, May 10:

J. O'Brien of Foundry, who was tried out in Foundry's game against St. Stephen's, not only made good, but aided materially in winning the game. He hit a 750 gait, which places him at the head of the individual batters.

"Vic" Bielaski, who has been nosed out of the batting champion's honors, has thus far by a very narrow margin, has nosed out the most creditable record, with an average of .345 for five games. O'Brien only having played in one. Fourth has another representative among the top notchers in Charley King, who lost first place to Harding the first season by only one point, Charley did not do much with the stick last year, but seems to have his orbs focused properly on the sphere this season. There are many at present near the top who will "fade away" as the season grows older, and on the other hand hitters like Harding, Chittenden, Gunton and Vaughan. As Vaughan has taken part in only one game, Kerr is the real leader of his team.

Hayden, who led the burglars' gang last year, is again the leading base stealer, with Kerr only one pilfer behind him.
